Piero San Giorgio - Survive - The Economic Collapse.[A case of renal cell carcinoma with multiple angiomyolipoma in the right kidney treated by right nephrectomy and right renal arterial embolization]. A 70-year-old man was referred to our hospital with an abnormal mass on the right kidney. Computed tomography revealed a retroperitoneal tumor and multiple angiomyolipomas in the right kidney. Right nephrectomy and right renal arterial embolization were performed. The histology of the tumor was papillary renal cell carcinoma, with a chondromyxoid stroma and intraluminal blood clots. Histologically, angiomyolipoma was suspected because of the presence of proliferated smooth muscle cells and blood clots. Postoperative angiography showed total occlusion of the right renal arterial branch. The symptoms of the patient have been relieved since the right nephrectomy and the arterial embolization.
